BEHOLD, A PALE HORSE

A True Crime Narrative

by Daniel Casolaro

©, 1990

Behold, a pale horse and its rider's name was death and Hades followed him, and they were given power over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword and with famine and with pestilence and by wild beasts of the earth

BEHOLD, A PALE HORSE

A True Crime Narrative

An international cabal whose freelance services cover parochial political intrigue, espionage, sophisticated weapon technologies that include biotoxins, drug trafficking, money laundering and murder-for-hire has emerged from an isolated desert Indian reservation just north of Mexicali.

While this cabal continues today, its origins were spawned thirty years ago in the shadow of the Cold War. In recent months, however, some of its members have emerged from the trenches like scarecrows to take gratuitous credit for their roles in delaying the release of the hostages in Iran until after the 1980 presidential election, scuttling and resettling the dope and dirty money schemes of the notorious, Australian-based Nugan Hand Bank, assisting Super Gun maker Gerald Bull who was assassinated last spring in Brussels and for the development and distribution of the Fuel Air Explosive which can pack the power of a nuclear weapon in a shoebox.

I propose a series of articles and a book, a true crime narrative, that unravels this web of thugs and thieves who roam the earth with their weapons and their murders, trading dope and dirty money for the secrets of the temple.

BEHOLD, A PALE HORSE will be a haunting odyssey that depicts a manifesto of deceit, decisions of conscience, good and evil, intrigue and betrayal.

He was sixty years old then and the Cabazon Indian reservation on the edge of Sonora was an ideal place for him to nurse his secret self. This is the vast desert emptiness where the yucca reaches nearly forty feet high, where the Mormons saw it as a symbol pointing to the promised land and they called it the Joshua Tree. But the Joshua Tree is an ugly, unsymmetrical lily with burly arms crooked at the elbow and it points everywhere, not unlike John Philip Nichols, as if asking itself "what shall I do next?"

There is a point on the ridge of the Little San Bernardino mountains known as Salton View where you are more than five thousand feet above the desert and where, to the north, you can see the great escarpment of Mount San Jacinto and, to the south, the man-made Salton Sea, the orchards of the Coachella valley and, on a clear day, old Mexico.

It is always clear in Indio and with the clarity of the warbler in the cottonwood grove, John Philip Nichols knew that he could bring his box office charity and all his earthly possessions into the reservation of the Cabazon Band of Mission Indians.

With no more than two dozen Indians and nearly two thousand acres of desert solitaire, cactus and cottongrove, the Cabazon reservation was a suitable home for gambling, dope, dirty money and gun running and all the fugitive visions that line the edge of oppression.

John Philip Nichols didn't howl under twelve full moons before the gambling was underway and, in the desert night, people flocked from all over to Indio Bingo and to the poker casino at the fork of Highway 10 and Highway 86.

Under a major corporation's umbrella subsidiary, later to be named Cabazon Arms, the gun runners and the money traders soon arrived, the weapon makers and the generals from Babylon, contra resuppliers, covert operatives from both the East and the West and, in what one source calls "a marriage of necessity," the dope dealers, the mobsters and the murderers.

Whatever John Philip Nichols saw in the dark cathedral of those desert nights in silence and certainty cracked and came unglued. After a number of still unsolved execution-style murders and a solicitation-for-murder charge for which he was jailed, the dark vision of John Philip Nichols eroded. Although he's been released from a short stint in prison, he's a one-eyed Jack now since only Indio Bingo gambling — managed by his sons, the Las Vegas-managed poker casino, the Indians and the most formidable creatures of the desert remain.

Several of the Cabazon Arms associates during the 1980s are coming out of the shadows to take top billing for the actual participation in the multi-million dollar laundered payment to the Iranians to delay the release of the hostages, in shutting down the dope and dirty money schemes of Nugan Hand and resurfacing its activities, in assisting Gerald Bull in the refinements and distribution of his weapon arsenal including his Super Gun and in the development of the Fuel Air Explosive technologies — thought to be responsible for the Beirut bomb which killed 241 U.S. servicemen.

While rumors of the hostage release delay circulated for years after the election of Ronald Reagan, it wasn't until 1988 that testimony was offered by two covert operatives in two different courts regarding their knowledge and participation of a hostage-release stall managed by then Reagan campaign chief William Casey. But now, two more covert operatives have emerged from that desert reservation in the journey of this story effort to confirm that previous testimony and provide richer details regarding the laundered payment by the Saudis and other particularities in order to prevent what Casey feared the most, a surprise release of the hostages before the election almost guaranteeing windfall votes for President Jimmy Carter. The alleged reward to another Reagan insider for that mission to Iran in the summer of 1980 has been almost wholly responsible for the leaks leading to this odyssey. For it was in that reward in the form of a multimillion dollar government contract that technologies were found to have been stolen by the government from another company. In that other company's recovery from bankruptcy, its CEO has been the real life star and gumshoe in this drama that continues to unfold each day.

In 1982, the body of thirty year old Paul Morasca was found hog-tied and fatally strangled in his condominium on San Francisco's Telegraph Hill. Morasca, who had been working among the Cabazon Arms confidantes reportedly had the access codes for offshore accounts containing hundreds of millions of dollars in drug money ostensibly for covert operations. Morasca's partner, who is one of the key sources for this story, claims to have scuttled Nugan Hand's operations and assumed control over all of the funds. Two years earlier, about ninety miles inland from Sydney, Frank Nugan's body was found slumped over in his Mercedes sedan. His partner, Michael Hand, has been missing since the investigation widened several month's after Nugan's death. Two sources in this story report knowledge of Michael Hand's whereabouts.

The drug trafficking, the contract murders, the spies and the investment frauds revealed in the Nugan Hand inquiries bear sinister, mirror-like qualities to the gang on that isolated desert reservation in Southern California.

A little more than six months ago, on a quiet spring evening in Brussels, a guns-to-Babylon mission splintered into pieces which were later found in the UK's Teesport and in Turkey. Gerald Vincent Bull ambled down the hallway leading to his apartment when an assassin fired two 7.6 millimeter rounds at point blank range into the back of his skull. The shadowy movements of his Super Gun dream took hold and gathered momentum in the Indio desert.

Six years ago on a balmy Sunday morning in Beirut, a Lebanese boy later nicknamed "Smiling Death" raced a Mercedes truck toward a building full of sleeping U.S. soldiers. A few seconds later, 241 Americans and 56 Frenchmen were dead in what the FBI called the largest man-made non-nuclear explosion since World War II. Nicknamed "Smiling Death" because of the chilling expression that the sentry recalled on the suicide driver's face, the bomb and the driver were traced to a Lebanese Shia Muslim extremist group, the Islamic Jihad and to the most dangerous terrorist at large today, Imad Mugniyah. Mugniyah's followers had used what investigators called a "trademark" using gas to enhance a powerful explosive. Investigators determined that the device was equivalent to nine tons of dynamite, made of a sophisticated explosive enhanced by gas and only the size of an unfolded card table. Its name: The Fuel Air Explosive.

Possession of a secret is no guarantee of its truth and while these allegations by a handful of people are indeed remarkable, they are also wrought with undocumentable details -- at least thus far, and veils of deniability masking the necessary spine for a traditional journalistic effort. It is for this reason that BEHOLD, A PALE HORSE is subtitled A TRUE CRIME NARRATIVE.

The first three chapters of the manuscript should be finished within three months of an initial advance and each subsequent chapter will be delivered every month. The completed book should be ready for publication by the summer of 1991.

THE OCTOPUS

by Daniel Casolaro

This is the story of eight men whose real life "impossible mission" intrigues have dominated key events that span the globe for nearly a half-century. They are the men who make up THE OCTOPUS.

They are not government officials but their tentacles can reach into any part of government in almost any country. They are not notable industrialists but they can pull the strings of the oil and banking empires at will. They are not known criminals but they have successfully penetrated all factions of organized crime including the Mafia, the Japanese Yakuza, the secret Chinese Triads and the terrorist underground.

With its tag team compartments, its exploitation of hundreds of people and formidable stealth, THE OCTOPUS will help to unravel the most compelling puzzles of the twentieth century.

What may have begun for these few learned men as a utopian response to ~~While a few of these eight men came together~~ harsh post-war realities quickly gave way to what simple men have always known as the real enemy which is selfishness and its allied forces of greed, ^{fear, and} power and fear.

While a few of these eight men came together to insure the failure of an initiative in Albania in the fifties, almost every one of them helped to frustrate the Cuban Bay of Pigs invasion. What did the fiasco at the Bay of Pigs accomplish?

his key advisor

President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell were becoming impossible as far as the octopus was concerned. Even Kissinger was being difficult in bypassing normal circles of intelligence with Vietnamization and the China card. How did all the pieces come together for the snowballing of Watergate? what mistakes, though, ~~did~~ were made?

*with Salvador

A different, marginally more officious costume was worn in Chile.

~~This was the same costume worn in what is now Zaire.~~ Since this operation (as in ~~the Congo~~ with ~~Patricio Sumuza~~) provided accumulated debt for favors performed, the octopus was now mature enough to know how to collect those debts. What ~~were~~ the favors performed by the octopus, ~~who~~ and what was the due bill?

It didn't take many people to design the apparatus that would insure the renewal of the lease for the Pine Gap installation near Alice Springs, Australia. After all, how could a democracy spit up a Prime Minister that could sack the security of the Western Alliance? What about tentacle operations (Zimbabwe) of the octopus in Angola, Rhodesia, Mozambique and Nigeria? Was this another case of wearing the right costume again, as in Chile ¹ ~~or the Congo (Zaire)?~~ Politically correct assistance can cover the cover of the octopus for anything — drug trafficking, ~~throughout Asia and the Mideast,~~ arms dealing and murder.

But what happened to the money — nearly a billion ~~dollars~~ dollars?

Since the great arm of the octopus was ~~best friends~~ with the Shah of Iran.

Who drove the Shah out of power? Can best friends do this to each other?

What role did the octopus play and for what reasons? If it wasn't so unbelievable since the great arm of the octopus was at risk again, how was it achieved?

Who lit the fire ~~for~~ for the war between Iran and Iraq. What part did the octopus play? What was its purpose in the big picture? Is any picture that big?

Jimmy Carter had bruised the octopus as badly as Nixon did with ~~greater~~ unintended focus ~~xxxxxxx~~. Why did the octopus come off the ocean floor for this to make sure no rescue was possible? What happened to those Sea Stallion helicopters, the most dependable helicopter in aviation history? Everyone knows that Hostages equals money but why is it that no one has asked what happened to the billion of dollars in frozen assets?

The Octopus

Since Reagan was not a favored son of the octopus, why did it work so hard to insure his election in 1980? Even if the participation by campaign officials in withholding the hostages ~~until the election~~ ^{was} to make sure the hostages were not released until the election was limited to just the acquiescence of smiling gentlemen who knew better, why were the veils ^{and the necessary deniability} removed? Why was it done like this when it could have been so absolutely secret?

Exploiting foreign policy objectives with the Contras in Nicaragua is one thing but why was the creation of a Latin American equivalent to the Golden Triangle so irresistible?

A huge amount of money -- several billion dollars -- was raised for the Afghan freedom fighters. What happened to most of the money? The freedom fighters didn't get it ^{and} Even the octopus had to fight for ^{it} this operation. Who else started to play the game in earnest? How did the octopus stop it?

Was it just a clever hand that the octopus played with Kuwait and Iraq? What about Kuwait's OPEC decisions which goaded Saddam Hussein into his takeover. What role did the octopus play? ^{Why was the Bank of Credit & Commerce International suddenly a sacrificial lamb?} (BCCI)

Before the reins of the octopus are turned over to several younger players, the game continues now -- July, 1991 -- on the tiny Caribbean island nation of Dominica. Possessing the largest boiling deep water lake in the world, Dominica's geothermal potential is unmatched. It is here that the octopus may be making its boldest and most dangerous move yet.

BEHOLD, A PALE HORSE

A True Crime Narrative

An international cabal whose freelance services cover parochial political intrigue, espionage, sophisticated weapon technologies that include biotoxins, drug trafficking, money laundering and murder-for-hire has emerged from an isolated desert Indian reservation just north of Mexicali.

While this cabal continues today, its origins were spawned thirty years ago in the shadow of the Cold War. In recent months, however, some of its members have emerged from the trenches like scarecrows to take gratuitous credit for their roles in delaying the release of the hostages in Iran until after the 1980 presidential election, scuttling and resettling the dope and dirty money schemes of the notorious, Australian-based Nugan Hand Bank, assisting Super Gun maker Gerald Bull who was assassinated last spring in Brussels and for the development and distribution of the Fuel Air Explosive which can pack the power of a nuclear weapon in a shoebox.

I propose a series of articles and a book, a true crime narrative, that unravels this web of thugs and thieves who roam the earth with their weapons and their murders, trading dope and dirty money for the secrets of the temple.

BEHOLD, A PALE HORSE will be a haunting odyssey that depicts a manifesto of deceit, decisions of conscience, good and evil, intrigue and betrayal.

He was sixty years old then and the Cabazon Indian reservation on the edge of Sonora was an ideal place for him to nurse his secret self. This is the vast desert emptiness where the yucca reaches nearly forty feet high, where the Mormons saw it as a symbol pointing to the promised land and they called it the Joshua Tree. But the Joshua Tree is an ugly, unsymmetrical lily with burly arms crooked at the elbow and it points everywhere, not unlike John Philip Nichols, as if asking itself "what shall I do next?"

There is a point on the ridge of the Little San Bernardino mountains known as Salton View where you are more than five thousand feet above the desert and where, to the north, you can see the great escarpment of Mount San Jacinto and, to the south, the man-made Salton Sea, the orchards of the Coachella valley and, on a clear day, old Mexico.

It is always clear in Indio and with the clarity of the warbler in the cottonwood grove, John Philip Nichols knew that he could bring his box office charity and all his earthly possessions into the reservation of the Cabazon Band of Mission Indians.

With no more than two dozen Indians and nearly two thousand acres of desert solitaire, cactus and cottongrove, the Cabazon reservation was a suitable home for gambling, dope, dirty money and gun running and all the fugitive visions that line the edge of oppression.

John Philip Nichols didn't howl under twelve full moons before the gambling was underway and, in the desert night, people flocked from all over to Indio Bingo and to the poker casino at the fork of Highway 10 and Highway 86.

Under a major corporation's umbrella subsidiary, later to be named Cabazon Arms, the gun runners and the money traders soon arrived, the weapon makers and the generals from Babylon, contra resuppliers, covert operatives from both the East and the West and, in what one source calls "a marriage of necessity," the dope dealers, the mobsters and the murderers.

Whatever John Philip Nichols saw in the dark cathedral of those desert nights in silence and certainty cracked and came unglued. After a number of still unsolved execution-style murders and a solicitation-for-murder charge for which he was jailed, the dark vision of John Philip Nichols eroded. Although he's been released from a short stint in prison, he's a one-eyed Jack now since only Indio Bingo gambling — managed by his sons, the Las Vegas-managed poker casino, the Indians and the most formidable creatures of the desert remain.

Several of the Cabazon Arms associates during the 1980s are coming out of the shadows to take top billing for the actual participation in the multi-million dollar laundered payment to the Iranians to delay the release of the hostages, in shutting down the dope and dirty money schemes of Nugan Hand and resurfacing its activities, in assisting Gerald Bull in the refinements and distribution of his weapon arsenal including his Super Gun and in the development of the Fuel Air Explosive technologies — thought to be responsible for the Beirut bomb which killed 241 U.S. servicemen.

While rumors of the hostage release delay circulated for years after the election of Ronald Reagan, it wasn't until 1988 that testimony was offered by two covert operatives in two different courts regarding their knowledge and participation of a hostage-release stall managed by then Reagan campaign chief William Casey. But now, two more covert operatives have emerged from that desert reservation in the journey of this story effort to confirm that previous testimony and provide richer details regarding the laundered payment by the Saudis and other particularities in order to prevent what Casey feared the most, a surprise release of the hostages before the election almost guaranteeing windfall votes for President Jimmy Carter. The alleged reward to another Reagan insider for that mission to Iran in the summer of 1980 has been almost wholly responsible for the leaks leading to this odyssey. For it was in that reward in the form of a multimillion dollar government contract that technologies were found to have been stolen by the government from another company. In that other company's recovery from bankruptcy, its CEO has been the real life star and gunshoe in this drama that continues to unfold each day.

In 1982, the body of thirty year old Paul Morasca was found hog-tied and fatally strangled in his condominium on San Francisco's Telegraph Hill. Morasca, who had been working among the Cabazon Arms confidantes reportedly had the access codes for offshore accounts containing hundreds of millions of dollars in drug money ostensibly for covert operations. Morasca's partner, who is one of the key sources for this story, claims to have scuttled Nugan Hand's operations and assumed control over all of the funds. Two years earlier, about ninety miles inland from Sydney, Frank Nugan's body was found slumped over in his Mercedes sedan. His partner, Michael Hand, has been missing since the investigation widened several month's after Nugan's death. Two sources in this story report knowledge of Michael Hand's whereabouts.

The drug trafficking, the contract murders, the spies and the investment frauds revealed in the Nugan Hand inquiries bear sinister, mirror-like qualities to the gang on that isolated desert reservation in Southern California.

A little more than six months ago, on a quiet spring evening in Brussels, a guns-to-Babylon mission splintered into pieces which were later found in the UK's Teesport and in Turkey. Gerald Vincent Bull ambled down the hallway leading to his apartment when an assassin fired two 7.6 millimeter rounds at point blank range into the back of his skull. The shadowy movements of his Super Gun dream took hold and gathered momentum in the Indio desert.

Six years ago on a balmy Sunday morning in Beirut, a Lebanese boy later nicknamed "Smiling Death" raced a Mercedes truck toward a building full of sleeping U.S. soldiers. A few seconds later, 241 Americans and 56 Frenchmen were dead in what the FBI called the largest man-made non-nuclear explosion since World War II. Nicknamed "Smiling Death" because of the chilling expression that the sentry recalled on the suicide driver's face, the bomb and the driver were traced to a Lebanese Shia Muslim extremist group, the Islamic Jihad and to the most dangerous terrorist at large today, Imad Mugniyah. Mugniyah's followers had used what investigators called a "trademark" using gas to enhance a powerful explosive. Investigators determined that the device was equivalent to nine tons of dynamite, made of a sophisticated explosive enhanced by gas and only the size of an unfolded card table. Its name: The Fuel Air Explosive.

Possession of a secret is no guarantee of its truth and while these allegations by a handful of people are indeed remarkable, they are also wrought with undocumentable details — at least thus far, and veils of deniability masking the necessary spine for a traditional journalistic effort. It is for this reason that BEHOLD, A PALE HORSE is subtitled A TRUE CRIME NARRATIVE.

The first three chapters of the manuscript should be finished within three months of an initial advance and each subsequent chapter will be delivered every month. The completed book should be ready for publication by the summer of 1991.

DEATH OF THE POET

PD/CW/OD-69

A book proposal by Daniel Casolaro

An international cabal whose services cover parochial political intrigue, espionage, the trade of weapon technologies including biotoxins, drug trafficking, money laundering and murder has emerged from an isolated desert Indian reservation just north of Mexicali.

While this cabal continues today, its origins were spawned thirty years ago in the shadow of the Cold War. In recent months, however, its members have come out of the trenches like scarecrows to take gratuitous credit for the purposeful delay of the release of the hostages in Iran until after the 1980 election, scuttling and resettling the schemes of the notorious Australian-based Nugan Hand Bank, involvement with Gerald Bull -- assassinated last spring in Brussels and the development and distribution of the fuel air explosive which has reportedly been used in Managua, South Africa and in Beirut.

I propose a series of articles and a book, a true crime narrative, that unravels this cabal which roams the earth with its intrigue of injustices, its weapons and its murders, trading dope and dirty money for the secrets of some phantom temple.

DEATH OF A POET will be a haunting odyssey to depict a manifesto of deceit, decisions of conscience, good and evil, intrigue and betrayal.

^{successful}
The penetration by a handful of people of the secret empire of the espionage network, Big oil and organized crime

(1) This story is about ^{centrally a dozen} ~~a group of~~ ^{seven} ~~people~~ who have changed the course of the world ^{by} ~~whose gifts have successfully exploited~~
The secret empires of rogue spy networks, big oil and organized crime.

What may have begun as a utopian response from bush post war realities has given way to what simple men have always known to be the real enemy, which is selfishness.
Allied with it are the ageless forces of greed and power, fear and hate.

These eight people have changed the course of ^{notable} history in the American presidency, Cuba, Chile, Iran and Iraq.
~~What~~ This story, incredible but true, is about a real life Impossible Mission force whose brain trust has enabled them to control governmental institutions in the U.S. and abroad. (Indeed, what you will learn is a rewrite of American history over the last 30 years.
This group of ^{seven} people caused the U.S. to turn its back on Fidel Castro after supporting him in the mountains of Sierra Maestra. This same group of people created relationships in 1966 at the Tricontinental Congress in Havana.

PD/CW/CD-10

They all came together in the OSS in post war Europe.

While a few of the eight came together ^{again in the 1950s} as an "impossible mission" force for a failed initiative in Albania, all of them were involved in the ~~failed~~ ^{frustrated} Cuban Bay of Pigs invasion.

① Was that on purpose? It required This story will tell you.

• The Octopus is a story that will rewrite history. It is a story about eight people who have changed the course of nations ~~over the last 30~~ on all continents over the last 30 years. This Octopus has ~~successfully~~ penetrated and exploited the secret empires of international espionage, ~~big oil and~~ ^{the worldwide oil industry} organized crime. Its compartmentalized penetration into every secret society the world over from the Mafia to the Triad groups in Hong Kong,

These two men ~~design their~~ sabotage their own ~~architecture~~ ^{design} plan for the mission that snowballed into Watergate? This story will tell you. ^③ ^{Neapela windfall}

A different ~~cos~~ marginally more officious costume was worn in Chile. What was that about and who killed Allende? Who killed Letelier? This story will tell you.

What was the role of Wuckenthat and ITT?

It didn't take many people to draw the apparatus ^{in Sidney} ~~insuring~~ that would insure the ~~lease~~ ^{in line with} renewal of the lease for Pim Gap. After all how could it be that a western democracy could spit up a guy that could have sacked the security of the Western Alliance. What about Angola, Rhodesia, Mozambique? Was this ^{being run out of operations} ~~operations in~~ for this octopus

Another case of wearing the right costume again, like in Chile? ^{Political correct assistance can} covering your cover for drugs, traffic, guns and murder. ^{is hard to swallow} Who drove the Shah out of power?

This one even I didn't believe since best friends can't do this to each other. ^{and I hate waiting on lines for gasoline} Who lit the fires for the war between Iran & Iraq? What was its purpose in the big picture? Is any picture that big? A lot of money was raised for the Mujahadeen ^{more than 17 billion} but who ^{the octopus helped raise} how come the freedom fighters only got a few fractions million. Those of that? How could you make sure ⑤ Carter was becoming impossible for several legs of The Octopus bruising it around every corner as badly as Nixon did and just as curious about its life where no one could see it. ~~It was~~ This creature came off the ocean floor for this operation and had to ~~insure~~ make sure that the hostages were not rescued. Eight Americans died in the desert debacle. This story will tell you how. ^{the most dependable} Those helicopters in aviation all ~~came~~ broke down at the same time.

How is that going to win friends in Washington?

And what happened to all those frozen assets anyway? The Octopus counted you.

How was it that the Octopus could be sure ~~making~~ ^{credit} the Octopus wanted a gold star for making sure that the hostages were held until the Reagan victory in 1980. ~~Wasn't the part~~ ^{What was William}

UPDATE ON THE PURSUIT OF THE TAPE &

The Jailing of Danger Man

It is a pale moon that illuminates the characters in this story. With chords of fear and longing, it is a world of darkness and betrayal that everyone thinks they know but few have seen. The real faces in this world are all too human, however. Danger Man's mind is as willful and fragmented as the script he lives and the land he travels. The background music no longer keeps a tune to the oath of patriots but T.S. Eliot's Gerontion: "Think/neither fear nor courage saves us. Unnatural vices/are fathered by our heroism. Virtues/are forced upon us by our impudent crimes."

These crimes are the subject of this update and a brief capsule seems as hopeless as carving the Bill of Rights on the head of a secret agent. For, like the enormous Danger Man himself, this story resists shrinkage. Its events are too current, its local color too feverish.

The sun had burned away the morning fog when I arrived in Seattle on Easter Sunday, bound for Everett, some thirty miles away. I had come to visit and retrieve a tape recording from the intriguing Danger Man himself, 43 year old Michael J. Riconosciuto, whom lawmen had deposited in the Snohomish County Jail in Everett, Washington.

The tape that Danger Man had recorded a month earlier, he alleged, was a direct threat from a former Justice Department official describing two legal entanglements that were about to befall him if he cooperated with a mushrooming Capitol Hill inquiry. If this tape was retrievable, I knew this scandal was about to be publicly born.

It was during the last year that I began calling Michael "Danger Man." During hours of telephone calls from him, he had told me in exotic detail of his participation in "an enterprise" that worked its way around the world, trading in dope, dirty money, weapons, biotoxins and murder for the secrets of the temple. I had been able to unearth some documentation and a number of other people who were willing to provide a rich array of detail regarding Danger Man, his former associates and of the underground empire he described.

But now he had become a key witness in the eight year old legal battle between the Justice Department and Inslaw, a District of Columbia computer company whose software tracking system called PROMIS has been used by law enforcement to track cases and criminals. "But it will track anything once its provided with the rules," Inslaw's founder says.

Inslaw charged, and two courts have agreed, that the software -- selling for $150,000 per user -- had been stolen by a handfull of people in the Justice Department in the course of a contract dispute. Now, Inslaw charges, the software has been distributed by profiteers to intelligence and military agencies in, among other countries, Iraq, Libya, South Korea, Israel and Canada. Inslaw's William Hamilton had independently learned from a Canadian official that PROMIS was being used in 900 different locations in Canada.

A little more than a week before his arrest, Danger Man had filed an affidavit in the case on behalf of Inslaw saying that private interests had hired him in the early 1980s to modify the software for Canadian distribution. Those private interests, he told me, represented tentacles of the underground cabal that made its home on an Indian reservation just north of Mexicali. In the affidavit, Danger Man said he was called in February by a former Justice Department official and warned against cooperating with an investigation into the case by the House Judiciary Committee.

He added that the former Justice official told him that if he talked to investigators he would be implicated in an unrelated criminal case and would lose another ongoing child custody case.

Octopus: Proposals + Draft

Late Friday evening on March 29, on the Key peninsula off Puget Sound, Danger Man was arrested for distribution of methamphetamine.

I arrived in Snohomish County two days later on March 31. This is ponderosa pine and giant fir country flanked by the Cascade Mountain range to the east, Port Gardner Bay and the Olympic Mountains to the west with the Snohomish River snaking through the north end of the city of Everett, the county seat.

By late evening, I had been to the jail a number of times and each time Danger Man was refused visitors on the orders of the U.S. Marshall in Seattle. Still, Danger Man was able to find me at a nearby motel and call several times from the jail with cryptic directions for the retrieval of the tape, his expected movement the following day to a federal magistrate in Tacoma and more details about how dangerous he was becoming to the enterprise.

That enterprise moved drugs, guns and money to the ever changing temples of power in different parts of the world, the geography changing with the political climate unless the political climate could be changed to suit the enterprise, according to Danger Man, two other "agents of influence," and a former Israeli agent.

But no one is supposed to talk about it and Danger Man told me again of his best friend Paul who had been murdered in San Francisco almost ten years earlier. "Paul was the best there was as a money mover. The access codes he maneuvered were offshore accounts amounting to over a billion dollars," Danger Man said. "They don't play around. You're just found dead one day."

Traveling to Tacoma with Danger Man's lawyer, I saw seals basking in the only shaft of sun I had seen so far in the Northwest -- fat with their cat of steelhead trout moving to freshwater spawning. We talked of Danger Man's allegations, some documentable, and the tape that both of us had been promised.

"Michael sure called this one," the lawyer said.

We arrived in Tacoma just before the 3 P.M. hearing. Danger Man filled the courtroom with his presence. Under six feet tall, he was immense in frame but agile and graceful in movement like some giant white rabbit or perhaps some hybrid fugitive creature related to a fox.

A former Air America pilot who says he may know Danger Man under a name other than Michael Riconosciuto says "He was called 'the Fat Man' in Asia." Richard Brenneke won't even talk about Danger Man over the telephone. (Brenneke's claims through the years regarding his role in an "October Surprise" plot to delay American hostages in Iran until after the 1980 election have been bouncing around for some time.)

The hearing before a federal magistrate in Tacoma concerned bail for Danger Man which was refused. While the complaint charged an isolated incident of distributing drugs on March 29, there were four other dates mentioned in which confidential informants with audio and video recordings were used as well.

The next day -- April 2 -- I was driven from Gig Harbor to a patch of bog in the peninsula on the reaches of Puget Sound. This is where, I was told, Danger Man had thrown a copy of the tape from a car on the night of his arrest. I was driven up into the hills on the peninsula. Here the high pine trees, mostly wolf pine, and the red cedar stay in the rain shadow. The ground is mostly scrubland and skunk cabbage heavy with the scent of wild herbs and flowers especially in the pouring rain. Many of the people live in huts, some attached to mobile homes, in the backwater of the peninsula. The first man I was to meet on this far end of nowhere was an old, grey-bearded Swede in a wide-brimmed leather hat. He came out of his hut talking in staccato rhythms and reciting broken poetry. He appeared somewhere between 60 and 70 years of age. "Can you cry?" he asked me. "Then prepare to shed a tear and shed them now," he said. He hardly paused on the hillside in the pouring rain before advising that "The fault is not in the stars. The fault is in ourselves."

When he stopped talking, he started singing and finally I was able to ask if he had a tape for me.

Sitting side by side under a tarp, the bearded old Swede took me on a compulsory guided tour of Danger Man from the time he was a child winning science fairs to now. Prior to working with the Nobel Laureate at Stanford's Physics Lab at 16 and 17 years of age, he had supposedly already distinguished himself in mining, sonar, lasers and communications. Much of that I had heard before. Nobel Laureate Dr. Arthur Schalow, in a lengthy interview months before, remembered Danger Man well. "You don't forget a 16 year old youngster who shows up with his own Argonne laser," Dr. Schalow had told me. There was an old article about Danger Man when he was 10 years old after he strung up an alternative telephone service in his neighborhood.

The old Swede, Danger Man's father and my driver wanted to make it very clear that this was a person who made very powerful people take notice of him when he was a boy. But why, I asked, would this group pursue him. Everyone, including Danger Man's father, would tell me "To control him." He had been running from that, I was told, since the mid-eighties when he left the Indian reservation. And now he was regarded as a rogue always presenting a moving target having been harassed through the years by brigades of law enforcement for one charge or another. I had even found an old letter of his dating back to 1982 in which he described having "to present a periscopic image

to the public."

The rain did not let up as the old Swede danced in the brush. I watched a big jack rabbit dart under and then away from the old Swede's tarp before it limped trembling and hidden in the grass. While some creatures are born to hunt, others are born to flee. These are nature's fugitives, and, like the fox, have a curious freedom in the masks they wear and access to obscure regions where no one will follow. Sometimes they have the protective coloring of the hunter but that is the ruse of the fox. They learn that instinctively.

By the end of the week I had trucked back and forth across Puget Sound by daylight and nightfall in an odyssey of pursuit for the tape. I would meet Danger Man in jail and talk with him many times from the Kitsap County jail to which he had been moved on the peninsula.

I had also been placated, I presumed, with documents concerned mostly with weapons, fuel air explosives, documents relating to Gerald Bull, assassinate the previous spring in Brussels, Carlos Carduen in Chile, mining papers, lab papers relating to scientific experiments with lasers, and letters regarding the return of that mysterious billion dollars which Danger Man said had come from the Nugan Hand bank in Australia. I had already seen some of these documents in the months before but now it looked as though the gumshoes from the House Judiciary Committee would also see them.

Two Capitol Hill investigators had arrived on my heels to interview Danger Man. By the end of the week they had arrived in Seattle, had discussions with the U.S. Attorney, and made arrangements to have Danger Man moved.

"I'm screwed," Danger Man said, "don't you see. These guys are my only hope.

"I've come up with the cheapest way to refine platinum there is. But I'm screwed because they'll try to show that the chemicals I use at the are precursor ingredients to making methamphetamine." The chemicals at one of his labs included, he said, chloracetone, sodium cyanide, nitric acid, ammonium chloride and bags of platinum dust.

If I received the tape, the original, I was to give it to the Judiciary Committee investigators, Danger Man said. I could make a copy for myself, he added, to bring back to Washington, D.C.

The next morning, Danger Man was moved from his cell on the Kitsap peninsula to Seattle where the Judiciary Committee investigators and their stenographer would be interviewing him. I arrived in Seattle and met both investigators. Despite their refusal to let me accompany them on their interview with Danger Man, reached an agreement to engage in dialogue back in the nation's capitol. They spent all day with Danger Man and then, I learned, were provided documents from another repository which I had not seen from Bremerton, Washington at the southern tip of the inlet. Having arrived on the 3rd day of April, both investigators left on the 6th.

By that time, I had learned that federal agents had raided one of Danger Man's labs in the mountainous Pine Creek area west of Tonasket still high with rain and snowmelt as well as his place in Aberdeen, a coastal strip town and still another lab or workplace in Anaheim, California.

I had previously talked to a Denver businessman about Danger Man and his elusiveness. "I watched Mike demonstrate a new laser weapon he had created," the Denver man said, "a wand that blew whatever he pointed it at straight up in the air. I had called a number of high ranking military people and Michael was scheduled to demonstrate this new creation at Fort Hood, Texas. When the time came and we gathered at Fort Hood, Michael just didn't show. That's the way he was then and I don't expect he's any different now."

The beginning of spring always has its moody, bad tempered transitions but with the tape never emerging, I was more than a little frustrated and more than doubtful in the tape's existence.

"I hope, for your sake, I'm wrong," I told him when he was back in the jail at Kitsap County.

He was unhappy I was leaving. I could sense his feelings grow mute in embarrassment, everything in him withdrew, a silence arose. I was going to be indulgent with whatever he said which I knew would still leave both of us empty handed; for ultimately, and precisely in the deepest and most important matters, especially if he was telling the truth, he was unspeakably alone.

I returned home the next day.

I had come to visit and retrieve a tape recording from the intriguing Danger Man himself, 43 year old Michael J. Riconosciuto, whom lawmen had deposited in the Snohomish County Jail in Everett, Washington.

The tape that Danger Man recorded a month earlier, he alleged, was a direct threat from a former Justice Department official describing two legal entanglements that were about to befall him if he cooperated with a mushrooming Capitol Hill inquiry. If this tape was retrievable, I knew this scandal was about to be publicly born.

It was during the last year that I began calling Michael "Danger Man." During hours of telephone calls from him, he had told me in exotic detail of his participation in "an enterprise" that worked its way around the world, trading in dope, dirty money, weapons, biotoxins and murder for the secrets of the temple. I had been able to unearth some documentation and a number of other people who were willing to provide a rich array of detail regarding Danger Man, his former associates and of the underground empire he described.

But now he had become a key witness in the eight year old legal battle between the Justice Department and Inslaw, a District of Columbia computer company whose software tracking system called PROMIS has been used by law enforcement to track cases and criminals. "But it will track anything once its provided with the rules," Inslaw's founder says.

Inslaw charged, and two courts have agreed, that the software — selling for $150,000 per user — had been stolen by a handful of people in the Justice Department in the course of a contract dispute. Now, Inslaw charges, the software has been distributed by profiteers to intelligence and military agencies in, among other countries, Iraq, Libya, South Korea, Israel and Canada. Inslaw's William Hamilton had independently learned from a Canadian official that PROMIS was being used in 900 different locations in Canada.

A little more than a week before his arrest, Danger Man had filed an affidavit in the case on behalf of Inslaw saying that private interests had hired him in the early 1980s to modify the software for Canadian distribution. Those private interests, he told me, represented tentacles of the underground cabal that made its home on an Indian reservation just north of Mexicali. In the affidavit, Danger Man said he was called in February by a former Justice Department official and warned against cooperating with an investigation into the case by the House Judiciary Committee.

He added that the former Justice official told him that if he talked to investigators he would be implicated in an unrelated criminal case and would lose another ongoing child custody case.

Late Friday evening on March 29, on the Key peninsula off Puget Sound, Danger Man was arrested for distribution of methamphetamine.

I arrived in Snohomish County two days later on March 31. This is ponderosa pine and giant fir country flanked by the Cascade Mountain range to the east, Port Gardner Bay and the Olympic Mountains to the west with the Snohomish River snaking through the north end of the city of Everett, the county seat.

By late evening, I had been to the jail a number of times and each time Danger Man was refused visitors on the orders of the U.S. Marshall in Seattle. Still, Danger Man was able to find me at a nearby motel and call several times from the jail with cryptic directions for the retrieval of the tape, his expected movement the following day to a federal magistrate in Tacoma and more details about how dangerous he was becoming to the enterprise.

That enterprise moved drugs, guns and money to the ever changing temples of power in different parts of the world, the geography changing with the political climate unless the political climate could be changed to suit the enterprise, according to Danger Man, two other "agents of influence," and a former Israeli agent.

But no one is supposed to talk about it and Danger Man told me again of his best friend Paul who had been murdered in San Francisco almost ten years earlier. "Paul was the best there was as a money mover. The access codes he maneuvered were offshore accounts amounting to over a billion dollars," Danger Man said. "They don't play around. You're just found dead one day."

Traveling to Tacoma with Danger Man's lawyer, I saw seals basking in the only shaft of sun I had seen so far in the Northwest -- fat with their cat of steelhead trout moving to freshwater spawning. We talked of Danger Man's allegations, some documentable, and the tape that both of us had been promised

"Michael sure called this one," the lawyer said.

We arrived in Tacoma just before the 3 P.M. hearing. Danger Man filled the courtroom with his presence. Under six feet tall, he was immense in frame but agile and graceful in movement like some giant white rabbit or perhaps some hybrid fugitive creature related to a fox.

A former Air America pilot who says he may know Danger Man under a name other than Michael Piconosciuto says "He was called 'the Fat Man' in Asia." Richard Brenneke won't even talk about Danger Man over the telephone. (Brenneke's claims through the years regarding his role in an "October Surprise" plot to delay American hostages in Iran until after the 1980 election have been bouncing around for some time.)

The hearing before a federal magistrate in Tacoma concerned bail for Danger Man which was refused. While the complaint charged an isolated incident of distributing drugs on March 29, there were four other dates mentioned in which confidential informants with audio and video recordings were used as well.

The next day -- April 2 -- I was driven from Gig Harbor to a patch of bog in the peninsula on the reaches of Puget Sound. This is where, I was told, Danger Man had thrown a copy of the tape from a car on the night of his arrest. I was driven up into the hills on the peninsula. Here the high pine trees, mostly wolf pine, and the red cedar stay in the rain shadow. The ground is mostly scrubland and skunk cabbage heavy with the scent of wild herbs and flowers especially in the pouring rain. Many of the people live in huts, some attached to mobile homes, in the backwater of the peninsula. The first man I was to meet on this far end of nowhere was an old, grey-bearded Swede in a wide-brimmed leather hat. He came out of his hut talking in staccato rhythms and reciting broken poetry. He appeared somewhere between 60 and 70 years of age. "Can you cry?" he asked me. "Then prepare to shed a tear and shed them now," he said. He hardly paused on the hillside in the pouring rain before advising that "The fault is not in the stars. The fault is in ourselves."

When he stopped talking, he started singing and finally I was able to ask if he had a tape for me.

Sitting side by side under a tarp, the bearded old Swede took me on a compulsory guided tour of Danger Man from the time he was a child winning science fairs to now. Prior to working with the Nobel Laureate at Stanford's Physics Lab at 16 and 17 years of age, he had supposedly already distinguished himself in mining, sonar, lasers and communications. Much of that I had heard before. Nobel Laureate Dr. Arthur Schalow, in a lengthy interview months before, remembered Danger Man well. "You don't forget a 16 year old youngster who shows up with his own Argonne laser," Dr. Schalow had told me. There was an old article about Danger Man when he was 10 years old after he strung up an alternative telephone service in his neighborhood.

The old Swede, Danger Man's father and my driver wanted to make it very clear that this was a person who made very powerful people take notice of him when he was a boy. But why, I asked, would this group pursue him. Everyone, including Danger Man's father, would tell me "To control him." He had been running from that, I was told, since the mid-eighties when he left the Indian reservation. And now he was regarded as a rogue always presenting a moving target having been harassed through the years by brigades of law enforcement for one charge or another. I had even found an old letter of his dating back to 1982 in which he described having "to present a periscopic image

The rain did not let up as the old Swede danced in the brush. I watched a big jack rabbit dart under and then away from the old Swede's tarp before it limped trembling and hidden in the grass. While some creatures are born to hunt, others are born to flee. These are nature's fugitives, and, like the fox, have a curious freedom in the masks they wear and access to obscure regions where no one will follow. Sometimes they have the protective coloring of the hunter but that is the ruse of the fox. They learn that instinctively.

By the end of the week I had trucked back and forth across Puget Sound by daylight and nightfall in an odyssey of pursuit for the tape. I would meet Danger Man in jail and talk with him many times from the Kitsap County jail to which he had been moved on the peninsula.

I had also been placated, I presumed, with documents concerned mostly with weapons, fuel air explosives, documents relating to Gerald Bull, assassinated the previous spring in Brussels, Carlos Carduen in Chile, mining papers, lab papers relating to scientific experiments with lasers, and letters regarding the return of that mysterious billion dollars which Danger Man said had come from the Nugan Hand bank in Australia. I had already seen some of these documents in the months before but now it looked as though the gumshoes from the House Judiciary Committee would also see them.

Two Capitol Hill investigators had arrived on my heels to interview Danger Man. By the end of the week they had arrived in Seattle, had discussions with the U.S. Attorney, and made arrangements to have Danger Man moved.

"I'm screwed," Danger Man said, "don't you see. These guys are my only hope.

"I've come up with the cheapest way to refine platinum there is. But I'm screwed because they'll try to show that the chemicals I use at the mine are precursor ingredients to making methamphetamine." The chemicals at one of his labs included, he said, chloracetone, sodium cyanide, nitric acid, ammonium chloride and bags of platinum dust.

If I received the tape, the original, I was to give it to the investigators, he said. I could make a copy, he added, to bring back to Washington, D.C.

The next morning, Danger Man was moved from his cell on the Kitsap peninsula to Seattle where the Judiciary Committee investigators and their stenographer would be interviewing him. I arrived in Seattle and met both investigators. Despite their refusal to let me accompany them on their interview with Danger Man, we reached an agreement to engage in dialogue back in the nation's capitol. They spent all day with Danger Man and then, I learned, provided documents from another repository which I had not seen in Bremerton at the southern tip of the inlet. Having arrived on the 3rd of April, both investigators left on the 5th.

By the tail end of the week, I had learned that federal agents had raided one of Danger Man's labs in the mountainous Pine Creek area west of Tonasket still high in rain and snowmelt as well as his place in Aberdeen, a coastal strip town and still another place in Anaheim, California.

I had previously talked to a Denver businessman about Danger Man and his elusiveness. "I watched Mike demonstrate a new laser weapon he had created," the Denver man said, "a wand that blew whatever he pointed it at straight up in the air. I had called a number of high ranking military people and Michael was scheduled to demonstrate this new creation at Fort Hood, Texas. When the time came and we gathered at Fort Hood, Michael just didn't show. That's the way he was then and I don't expect he's any different now."

The beginning of spring always has its moody, bad tempered transitions but with the tape never emerging, I was more than a little frustrated and more than doubtful in the tape's existence.

"I hope, for your sake, I'm wrong," I told him when he was back in the jail at Kitsap County.

He was unhappy I was leaving. I could sense his feelings grow mute in embarrassment, everything in him withdrew, a silence arose. I was going to be indulgent with whatever he said which I knew would still leave both of us empty handed; for ultimately, and precisely in the deepest and most important matters, especially if he was telling the truth, he was unspeakably alone.

I returned home the next day.

It is a pale moon that illuminates the characters in this story. With chords of fear and longing, it is a dark world that everyone thinks they know about but few have seen. The real faces in this world are all too human. Danger Man's mind is as balkanized as the script he lives and the land he travels. Perhaps betrayal becomes a way of life. The message no longer echoes national anthems but T.S. Eliot's Gerontion: "Think/neither fear nor courage saves us. Unnatural vices/are fathered by our heroism. Virtues/are forced upon us by our impudent crimes."

These impudent crimes are the subject of this update and a brief capsule seems as hopeless as carving the Lord's prayer on the head of a secret agent. For, like Danger Man himself, this story will resist shrinkage. Its events are too febrile, its local color relentless.

The sun had burned away the morning fog when I arrived in Seattle on Easter Sunday, bound for Everett, some thirty miles away. I had come to visit and retrieve a tape recording from the intriguing Danger Man himself, 43 year old Michael J. Riconosciuto, whom lawmen had deposited in the Snohomish County Jail in Everett, Washington.
